Quote: "It is indeed a privilege to be able to join the WSH Council, and to work with esteemed leaders from across the entire spectrum of industries to promote and improve workplace health and safety in Singapore. That the Council is so widely represented points to the fact that health and safety is an important concern, no matter where we work. I believe that so long as management and staff, from the very top to the very bottom, are aligned in making health and safety a priority, workplace accidents can be a thing of the past."
