

Adjunct Professor Tang Kong Choong, MBBS (S'pore), MMed (Anaesthesiology)

Adj Prof Tang is the CEO of Tan Tock Seng Hospital – the flagship hospital of the National Healthcare Group (NHG), Singapore. With more than 2000 beds on HealthCity Novena Campus, TTSH serves the tertiary healthcare needs of 1.5 million residents in Central-North, Singapore as part of the regional health system helmed by NHG. As CEO, Adj Prof Tang drives the hospital's long term plan (TTSH 2030) to achieve excellence in Tertiary Care and Academic Health, enabled through digital and workforce transformation and also redevelopment of the campus, as part of Phase 2 of the HealthCity Novena Masterplan.

Prior to joining TTSH, Adj Prof Tang had an illustrious career in the Singapore Armed Forces Medical Corps from 1992-2019. His final appointment was the Chief of Medical Corps from 2015-2019. During his tenure as CMC, he oversaw the review of the SAF medical support and classification systems, implementation of the new electronic medical records system and development of the smart health and paramedic training and education roadmaps.

Quote: "Workplace safety and health (WSH) are critical enablers especially in the face of an ageing healthcare workforce coupled with an increasing demand for healthcare services. Healthcare leaders will need to strengthen the practice and culture of WSH to ensure that we can continue to serve the healthcare needs of Singapore going ahead."
